

The Make Payment use case (or just Payment above) is included in the Make Reservation use case, meaning that as part of Making a Reservation, you will also have to make a payment. It itself includes the Payment Method use case, which gets the user's choice of Payment method. That is then connected to three extended use-cases, that being Credit Card, PayPal, and Direct Deposit, as the user gets to choose which of three they want to use. Each of those is then connected to an outside party for verification, whether that be a credit card authorization, paypal, or a bank system. The payment method use case is also included on Refunds, which go through the same process.